Creativity wows at gingerbread house contest

Written by Brian Hartz

Dec. 11, 2009 – George Brown College's baking and pastry arts program held its annual gingerbread house competition today at its downtown Toronto campus.

The popular event attracted a large crowd who oohed and aahed over the creativity on display. First place went to Stephanie Carter and Kristina Vella (left), second place was awarded to Maria Zimmer, and third was a tie between Susan Flores and Vanessa Glason.

They were awarded great prizes such as Cuisinart kitchen scales and food processors, and the book Baking & Pastry by the staff of the Culinary Institute of America.

The judges were Dufflet Rosenberg of Dufflet Pastries, last year's winner Emily Rigo, Elizabeth Baird of Canadian Living magazine and Bakers Journal editor Brian Hartz.
